The Grand Army Demonstration.
By Associated Press.]
BOSTON, Aug. 12.—The day opened perfectly for the Grand Army demonstration. Light clouds obscure the sun's rays; the thermometer was 67 at 9 a. m., with a nice breeze. A hundred thousand strangers are in the city.

Before 8 o'clock the roar of cannon from the fleet in the harbor announced that the Dispatch with Secretary Tracy, Vice-President Morton and General Sherman was coming up the bay, and half an hour later another salute announced its arrival in the harbor. Subsequently Tracy and Morton took seats on the Presidential reviewing stand at Gopley Square.

President Harrison breakfasted early, and shortly before 9 o'clock received the Governor and State delegation, and the party took carriages and rode over a portion of the route of the parade to view the decorations. After this drive, the President took a seat on the reviewing stand. During the ride the President was the recipient of many expressions of good will and respect from the crowds along the way.

Meantime the formation of the great parade was proceeding on Commonwealth avenue. The Common and street adjoining were black with marching troops, while many thousands of spectators witnessed their maneuvers from the public garden and every other spot in the neighborhood where space could be procured.

The unexpected delay in the formation of the column was owing to the lateness of arrival of some delegations and the difficulty of massing so large a force in such narrow quarters. Departments were ranged on Commonwealth Avenue in the order of seniority, Illinois leading and Massachusetts as the receiving department, occupying the left of the line.

At 11:30 all was ready and Commander-in-Chief Alger with a full staff of 600 mounted men, escorted by the 113th Massachusetts cavalry and headed by a corps of mounted police, rode to the head of the Illinois department. The band struck up "God Bless the Soldiers," and at the command of the leader the greatest military street pageant ever witnessed in Boston began its march.

At 1 o'clock only six departments, those of Illinois, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York and Connecticut, had passed out of Commonwealth Avenue, and it looked as though the last department would not get off before late this afternoon. General Alger reached the reviewing stand in Adams Square at 1:45 p. m. It is expected it will require five hours for the procession to pass a given point.

The Turks Alarmed.
By Cable and Associated Press.]
CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 12.—Further conflicts have occurred between the Turks and Armenians in Alashgher district. It is reported that a band of young Russo-Armenian volunteers, mounted and well armed, have appeared at Erzeroum and are recruiting adherents fast. The report caused a panic among the Turkish authorities.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON (Cal.), August 11.—This afternoon about 1 o'clock three convicts named Hanlon, Turcott and Manning, who were repairing the windmill belonging to the prison, made their escape. After refusing to halt at the command of the guards two galling guns were turned loose on them. The bullets fell all around, but never struck them. When they reached the prison boundary they were challenged by vidette Porter, and they shot the horse from under him. It is supposed they are in the brush half a mile from San Rafael, and it is said they have opened a fusillade on the guards who have them cornered. Nineteen guards are thoroughly searching the hills for them. A. Turcott, for murder, was serving a life sentence. He came from San Joaquin in 1884. C. Manning and Hanlon were each serving 17 years for robbery committed in Mendocino in 1889.

SAN QUENTIN, Aug. 12.—The escaped convicts, Turcott, Hanlon and Manning, after reaching a gulch near Laurel Grove, threw up a breastwork of limbs, stumps and soil around a clump of trees in a dense thicket and secured a commanding and unpenetrable position. They stood a siege of about eighteen hours, firing at their besiegers every once in a while, but not to kill. Guard Bowen of Mendocino had the stock of his gun shattered by a shot from their rifle, and the bones of his right forearm were broken by the bullet rebounding.

After holding several negotiations with the Sheriff, being convinced that no one was killed, and probably securing some concessions, they surrendered their Winchester to Sheriff Standly of Mendocino and Healy of Marin, and were conducted to the San Quentin prison.

It is surmised that a cousin of Manning was the party who took the weapons on the prison grounds, and the officers are after him.

Destructive Storm in Colorado.
DENVER, Aug. 11.—A Bowlder, Col., special says: The bursting of a water-pout in the mountains above this town last night caused the water in the river to rise to a fearful height in a very few minutes. The cabin of W. J. King and wife, which was built on the banks of the river near Silona, was caught in the flood and both were drowned. The railroad track was washed away, so that no train will be able to run for three days. Bowlders weighing two tons were washed down the side of the mountains.

Near Loveland yesterday evening a hailstorm ruined the entire fruit, wheat and corn crops over a territory ten miles long and two wide.

Denver was visited this afternoon with a severe hailstorm, accompanied by fearful lightning, during which several people were rendered insensible. None were fatally injured.

Machinists' Strike.
By Associated Press.]
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 12.—The strike of the machinists for nine hours is spreading, and 3,000 men are now idle. The principal fight seems to be against the Westinghouse interests. By to-morrow, it is said, all the employees of Westinghouse, numbering 4,000, will be out.

A Washer Shot.
By Associated Press.]
CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Dr. Sawyer, a provincial physician, was shot, probably fatally, this afternoon by Sanchez, who claims to be a correspondent of the Chicago Horseman. It was brought about by an alleged intimacy between the doctor and Sanchez's wife.

A Railroad Transfer.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The Committee on Appropriations reported a joint resolution extending until August 29th the appropriations for the support of government not provided for in the general appropriation bills already passed.

In speaking of this resolution Rogers of Arkansas criticized the ruling made by the Speaker yesterday on the point of order raised by him.

The Speaker's only reply was: "The attitude of the Speaker towards the gentleman from Arkansas has been consistent, that of a polite endurance of what cannot be helped." [Applause on Republican side.]
The joint resolution was passed.

SENATE.

Hale reported back the House bill to extend the census law so as to require information to be obtained from unincorporated express companies; passed. Edmunds, from the Judiciary Committee, reported an amendment to the river and harbor bill and explained that its purpose was to make it unlawful to obstruct navigation in any navigable waters of the United States. Laid on the table and ordered printed. Edmunds presented a motion for a change of the rules by limiting debate on the tariff bill. Laid on the table and ordered printed.

Blair also offered a resolution for such a change of the rules as will permit the previous question to be moved after a proposition has been considered two days. The same disposition was made of it.

The tariff bill was then taken up, the pending question being on Vest's amendment, offered yesterday, reducing the duty on tin plates from 2-10 cents per pound to one cent, the present rate, and Morgan resumed his argument against the increased duty as provided in the paragraph.

RESTORED HER HEALTH.
For 25 years I suffered from boils, erysipelas and other blood affections, taking during that time great quantities of different medicines without giving me any perceptible relief. Friends induced me to try S. & S. It improved me from the start, and after taking several bottles, restored my health as far as I could hope for at my age, which is now seventy-five years.

DR. PRICE'S
BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
From the Professor of Chemistry, California College of Pharmacy.

SAN FRANCISCO, JANUARY 24, 1890.
I have made a careful analysis of a sample of Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder purchased by me in open market. The results of my analysis show that the Cream of Tartar used in its manufacture is pure and that it does not contain any foreign substances, such as Alum, Ammonia, Lime or other impurities. I consider it to be pure and wholesome, and in every way a superior article.

W. T. WHEELER, M. D., Ph. C.,
Professor of Chemistry in the Cal. Col. of Pharm., University of California.

Don't Get Funny.

If all the papers in the State were as honest in their endeavors to build up a commonwealth worthy the name as the GAZETTE the Virginia Chronicle would not ask, "What the dickens is the Reno GAZETTE driving at, anyhow?" Neither would it accuse, or "abuse" Senator Jones like a pickpocket, for not one word of abuse has this journal published about Senator Jones. It has no occasion to abuse him. It has said, however, that he has not done as much for the State as a man who has been so highly honored for eighteen years should have done, and we repeat it. If he wants to again represent this people in the United States Senate the GAZETTE wants him to come to the front, and show by his acts that he has a feeling in common with the people and not give up the go-by entirely. If Senator Jones would but use his influence and some of his wealth in an endeavor to reclaim Nevada, it would not be twelve months before we should feel a quickening, and prosperity would be our lot. It is but necessary to call attention to an article from the Los Angeles Express published on the fourth page of yesterday's GAZETTE to show the truthfulness of our position. Senator Jones is investing large sums in reclaiming Southern California, but not one dollar at home. His family are entertaining their friends at their "Santa Monica home," and all the time Nevada is struggling to maintain her self-respect and stay on the map. All we have to say is that if Senator Jones wants to be again honored by a seat in the United States Senate by the people of Nevada he had better come home, study the situation, and lend his assistance in an endeavor to get us out of the rut. If the press of the State had the courage of a house it would see what we are trying to do and lend a little assistance in bringing it about.

In this connection we will say that we do not presume to question the Senator's right to let his family live anywhere they like, but if he wants voters at the next election, let him put 1,000 men to work on ditches in this valley and a like number in Carson valley, and our word for it, he will be doing the State more substantial benefit than he could do in any other way, and would be entitled to the respect and confidence of the people, and his support would come as a natural consequence, and the GAZETTE would be in the front rank.

Patronize Home.

The money sent away by Renosites for goods of one kind and another, if kept at home would amount to a handsome trade. It would warrant our merchants in carrying larger stocks and enable them to sell at a smaller profit. We do not believe that there is anything made in the long run by sending abroad for anything that can be bought at home, but there are people right here who send away for everything they eat, drink and wear. What good are such people to the community in which they make a living? is a question that is hard work to truthfully answer, for it might offend some one. Keep your money circulating at home and we shall do better, live longer and enjoy life much more and in the end have more money. The money sent to California for things that can be had at home goes out of circulation as far as this State is concerned, as it never finds its way back again.

The Government party in the British House of Commons is engaged in apologizing for Turkey's course toward the Armenians. They did the same thing for Turkish outrages in the Balkan provinces, which led up to the last Russo-Turkish war. A British Tory may be a very good fellow personally and privately, but as an international politician he is as void of conscience as an advocate of the Cobden Club "tariff for revenue" theory.

LITTLE INDIAN GIRLS.

How They Pass Their Leisure Hours While Attending School.

One of the teachers in an Indian school sends to the World-Courier an account of the every-day life of her Indian pupils which the boys and girls will be glad to read:

"Their yard is a good one to play in. It is a very large one, and has two groups of trees that make a nice shade, two or three swings, a teeter-board and a little bridge over a gully worn out by the water. In the spring the ground is covered with flowers. There are violets and dandelions, the purple buffalo-bean, blue vetch, pink oxalis and others, and the children gather and give away many a pretty little bouquet without ever leaving the yard. In one corner they have made a cemetery for various little animals that have died—a kitten, a chicken, a sparrow and two or three more. Behind the wood-pile they have built of old boards two little houses, each large enough to hold several children. The houses have roofs to keep off the sun, and here, with blocks of wood for seats and broken dishes to set their table with, they play at 'keeping house.'

"The children often go to walk when there is an older person to go with them. One day last fall two of us teachers went with about twenty little girls. Some were close beside us, and others were running ahead a little way. Suddenly I discovered that those before us were nowhere to be seen. 'What has become of those children?' I asked. But a few steps forward explained the matter. They had thrown themselves flat upon the ground in some furrows made by running water, and were completely hidden by the side of the furrows and the grass. In a minute they were up again; they only did it for fun to surprise us.

"Wherever they go, they seem to find some plant that has a part they can eat, and they greatly enjoy the berries or roots that they gather. Some of the fruits are really very nice. There are gooseberries, blackberries, grapes and plums in their season. But the children find something to browse upon at any time in the year. Just now the chief delicacy is the 'tipsinna,' or Indian turnip—a little white root, rather sweet and spicy—and the children sometimes go out expressly for the purpose of digging these. They also eat the bulb of the oxalis, rose-hips and sumac-berries, and these last stay on all winter, so that even in January and February they find something they like. One little girl even dug up a tulip-bulb and ate it. It is not because they are hungry, either, but they have always been used to eating these things and they like them. 'They play with dolls in the house, and among the possessions of the twenty-four girls there are dolls of all materials, from wax to rags. Some of the girls have made quite large and good-looking rag dolls; nearly all are capable of making and dressing little ones. They make more than they need for their own use, for they sometimes give their teachers little rag dolls as tokens of their love. They cut and make their dolls' clothes very well, and dress them, as they themselves dress, in true American fashion.

"But sometimes the loving remembrance of their home will show itself in their play. One day I met half a dozen or more little girls with their dolls upon their backs supported by a shawl, just as the Indian mothers carry their babies; and on another day I saw a little girl carrying in the same way the great good-natured black cat that belongs at the Birds' Nest. Ditto, the cat, seemed perfectly contented. He had one paw on each shoulder, just as a child carried in that way would be likely to place its hands. I think, however, that Ditto is a cat of unusual patience, for I have seen him sleeping flat on his back in a doll's cradle with coverlets tucked down tightly over him."

A WALKING PESTILENCE.

The Person Who Speaks His or Her Mind Always and Everywhere Little realizes how thankful many of his hearers are that they have not such an uncomfortable, unhappy, malodorous mind clamoring for expression, as is evidenced by the unkind judgments and uncharitable words which are usually on the lips of this frank person. For have you never noticed that this quality is rarely claimed and insisted upon other than apologetically? The Home Magazine says:

"Have you ever met the man who prides himself on the fact that he 'always says just what he thinks?' You have? Then you will agree with me that he is a good deal of a walking, talking pestilence. There is no truer saying than this, that speech was given to disguise one's thoughts. The refinements of civilized life melt away before the man or the woman who says what he or she thinks. Mortals of that kind do not even observe the good old rule about thinking several times before speaking. No. But, ignoring such a thing as tact, which is the fair offspring of thoughtful speech, they betray the fact that they speak what they have no business to think in a way that makes every one about them dismally uncomfortable and ready to vow that the man who thinks and speaks not is incomparably preferable to the fellow who thinks and speaks simultaneously. Those who work their chins and their brains synchronously, those who blurt out their thoughts, and pride themselves on so doing, may be well-meaning persons, but they are none the less unbearable. They grossly abuse the one gift which lifts them above the plane of animals—the gift of speech—when they say just what they think."

The Earliest Use of Forks.

The earliest distinct mention of the established use of forks occurs in a curious passage of Cypriotes—"Credulities," a singular book of travels published in England in 1611. The author says: "Here I will mention a thing that might have been spoken of before in the discourse of the first Italian towns. I observed a custom in all these Italian cities and towns through which I passed that is not used in any other country I saw in my travels, neither do I think any other nation of Christendom doth use it, but only in Italy. The Italians, and also most strangers that are traveling in Italy, do always at their meals use a little fork when they cut their meat."—Dry Goods Chronicle.

Scrofula

In Its Worst Form—"White Swelling" Cured.

The remarkable effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla in the following case illustrates the power of this medicine over all blood diseases. "My son, 7 years old, had a white swelling come on his right leg below the knee, which contracted the muscles so that his leg was drawn up at right angles. Physicians lanced the swelling, which discharged freely, but did not help him materially. I considered him

A Confirmed Cripple. I was about to take him to Cincinnati for an operation, expecting his leg would have to be taken off, and began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla in order to get up his strength. The medicine woke up his appetite, and soon pieces of bone were discharged from the sore. We continued with Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it seemed to be doing him so much good, and the discharge from the sore decreased, the swelling went down, the leg straightened out, and in a few months he had perfect use of his leg. He is now apparently as well as ever." JOHN L. McMURRAY, Notary Public, Ravenswood, W. Va.
